

Designing Slippers with Chinese Cultural Elements

I drew mooncakes and lanterns on the slippers, which are related to the Mid-Autumn Festival. This harvest festival is celebrated in Chinese culture on the 15th day of the 8th month of the Chinese calendar, coinciding with a full moon. Other celebrations include carrying brightly lit lanterns, lighting lanterns on towers, and floating sky lanterns. Making and sharing mooncakes is a tradition of the festival, with their round shape symbolizing completeness and reunion.
